How I get paid

I receive commission payments for all new and existing business via Wealthpoint

Advice Fees

We don't expect to charge any one-off fees for the advice we provide. If we do, I'll discuss this with you before we charge it and confirm the amount in a statement of advice.

How Wealthpoint gets paid

Wealthpoint receives a commission ranging between 0% and 200% of the first year's premiums of your policy, depending on which provider and policy I recommend. This is paid to Wealthpoint after the first policy premium. Wealthpoint can also receive a servicing and renewal commission which ranges between 0% and 30% of the annual premium. This is paid by the provider every year that the policy remains in place. The commission is then paid to Umbrella Group.

Conflicts of interest

Whilst Wealthpoint may receive more commission for some products than for others, I follow an advice process where your needs are identified and prioritised. I will recommend products to you on the basis of those needs.

I am trained annually on how to manage conflict of interest.

I follow the Code of Professional Conduct for Financial Advice Services. This code states that advisors must always act with integrity and avoid or appropriately manage conflicts of interest.
